Respected,
cool and fun

For more than a century, the Optimus name has stood for dependable outdoor stoves and clever accessories. Founded in Stockholm in 1899, the company has often set new technical standards over its lengthy history. Indeed, it has also earned numerous awards and has been a successful part of innumerable expeditions.

For many demanding users, the gas, multifuel and hybrid stoves by Optimus are their first choice - and for good reason. Bound by tradition of its name, Optimus products are continuously re-engineered for further improvement. Next to its high performance models, one also finds true classics in the portfolio. For example, the Optimus Svea, among others, continues to sell successfully after more than 70 years and has achieved cult status among outdoor enthusiasts. No matter whether a proven longtime standard or a super light newcomer, for backpacking or extreme expeditions, the reliable and stylish outdoor cooking gear from Optimus is bound to quickly become a beloved favorite - and of course a reliable catalyst for any upcoming adventure. Optimus has been a part of the Katadyn Group portfolio since 2007.

Optimus Svea

You're itching to start your day of adventure, but food is energy. The Svea stove has been a cult classic for light-and-fast climbers' and alpinists' gear bags for decades. Its simple design constructed of nearly bulletproof solid brass keeps it rugged too: The lid doubles as your cook pot. No loose parts to misplace. And the handle serves as a maintenance tool. A built-in cleaning needle helps you keep the flame burning and that pot of nourishment simmering. The exacting flame control lets you unpack your kit while the soup simmers, but you can get it boiling hard quickly when you can't wait. Great for solos, high-altitude adventures, or anytime super light is super right.
